Being successful can present us with just as many challenges as encountering failure. Ambition, fame, respect and wealth all bring spiritual issues that we can easily ignore as we bask in the approval of our peers. How do we reconcile the tension between doing well, and doing good? How do we get through the eye of the needle?

A successful professional and internationally known script consultant and speaker, Dr Seger tackles rarely-addressed issues that face every Christian in their professional lives: our sense of vocation; taking professional risks; God's timing versus ours; becoming important - and being overlooked; confronting evil; handling competition; the temptations we meet on the way up - and on the way down.

Each chapter features interviews with a number of high-profile Christians from around the world.

"Some of the best spiritual writing since C.S. Lewis."
... Professor Andrew Quicke, Regent University

"...Too many people don't know how to define success or what they want out of life. Thank you for the milestones you have pointed out...for determining our progress and our orientation to true north."
...Ralph Winter, Executive Producer, X-Men and Star Trek Films

"...While Linda Seger's writing is unreservedly contemporary, her reliance on Biblical teaching is evident throughout. What is so refreshing is that there is never a hint of any slipshod, packaged, or superficial answers. She is always prepared to stand up to the demands and sometimes tragedies of everyday existence." ... Dr. D. Gareth Jones, Professor of Anatomy and Structural Biology, University of Otago, New Zealand
